OpenGL is to work in a left-handed coordinate system. And none of the transforms necessary to get to window space from clip-space negate the Z. So clip-space, the output of the vertex (or geometry) shader is a left-handed space (kinda. It's a 4D homogeneous space, so it's hard to pin down the handedness).

In analytic geometry, also known as coordinate geometry, we think about geometric objects on the coordinate plane. For example, we can see that opposite sides of a parallelogram are parallel by writing a linear equation for each side and seeing that the slopes are the same.
