Food Sovereignty – Fernwood Publishing
Food sovereignty versus food security. Food sovereignty was born in response to campaigners' disillusion with food security, the dominant global discourse on food provisioning and policy. The latter emphasises access to adequate nutrition for all, which may be provided by food from one's own country or from global imports.

Food Sovereignty: Reconnecting Food, Nature and Community
This resistance has led to a new and radical agricultural practice - food sovereignty - which puts control in the hands of those who are both hungry and produce the world's food - peasants and family farmers - rather than corporate executives.

Food Sovereignty: Reconnecting Food, Nature and Community ...

Food sovereignty brings food providers and consumers closer together so they can make joint decisions on food issues that benefit and protect all. PUTS CONTROL LOCALLY Food sovereignty respects the right of food providers to have control over their land, seeds and water and rejects the privatization of natural resources.
