I watched the trial on television, and during it, I knew that he was guilty. The only thing that the book did was answer some of my questions. Its such a shame that he was acquitted of the murders, and even if he came right out and said I did it (which he did with this book) it wouldn't matter since he can't be tried again.

I did a little acting, too, and for a number of years I was a pitchman for Hertz, the rental car people. Some of you might remember me from the television spots: I was always running late, pressed for time, leaping over fences and cars and piles of luggage to catch my flight. If you dont see the irony in that, you will.
