The first (and last) place we made it to was the Armand Hammer Museum, which I am now officially declaring to be my favorite museum in LA. Every show we've seen there has been fantastic. OK, well, that may not apply if you're primarily interested in viewing only Impressionist works or art from previous centuries.

The Art Of Loving Armand

The Art of Loving I have always felt that one of the most important books of the 20th century was The Art of Loving by the American psychologist Erich Fromm. The theme of this book, which I would like to emphasize in the following lecture, is that of human communion, or Arman (born Armand Pierre Fernandez) was an early proponent of accumulation and scatter art. In 1959, he began displaying collections of objects in Plexiglas cases and creating installations of strewn garbage, which he called "Poubelles," or "trash bins." He also welded identical objects together to create larger sculptural pieces.
