Canadian cinema comprises a corpus of work that is not easily unified by a recognizable national style or a singular mode of production. The unruliness in the identity of Canadian cinema, including the imprecise distinction between popular and art cinema, has contributed to the ongoing difficulty of attaching critical definitions to it. This dissertation argues that the films made between 1972 ...

Unruly Girls, Unrepentant Mothers, a companion to Karlyn's The Unruly Woman (1995), studies how popular culture and contemporary feminism inform each other. It asks whether today's seemingly materialistic and apolitical girls have turned their backs on the feminism of their mothers or are redefining unruliness for a new age.

Written by Chandrima Home Rules govern our lives as well as all of society. We humans love to anthropomorphize the natural world. We try to identify characters, behaviors in the natural world that are more human-like and anything happening out of the box is often considered 'mad'. I personally like collecting such local trivia about...
