I read this book for the first time when I was about 13 and I adored it. I've read it at least 3 more times since. It's lost a little bit of its appeal but I still get the same emotions about the book i did when I first read it, so i still love it. Not the most wonderful book ever written, but it has emotional significance to me.

Mary Lowry's Wildfire is one of those unique books that appear from time to time, a sort of Huck Finn meets Moby Dick, that is, if Huck was a spunky young woman and the white whale was a wildfire. It is told with a voice you can trust, drama, and with an authentic account of just what it is like to be on a fireline.
